Samaca 49 Natural Slates

Samaca slates have been widely used in Ireland for a number of years and are recognised worldwide as a premium quality product.

Samaca 49 is an attractive grey/black slate with a rustic textured surface. Its colour, thickness and characteristics offer a traditional appearance which makes it ideally suited to both new-build and renovated properties. Samaca slates are quarried in the La Bana region, in the North West of Spain and are known for their quality and durability.

Stocks

Samaca 49 slates are available in two nominal thicknesses 5mm and 7mm and in the two most popular sizes 600mm x 300mm and 500mm x 250mm. CAPCO Roofing are the sole distributor of Samaca slates in Ireland.

Guarantee

Samaca slate is certified as A1, S1, T1 and conforms to EN 12326-1:2004 – Slate and Stone products for discontinuous roofing. Samaca slate is expected to exceed the life of the building and a formal manufacturer backed guarantee of 30 years is available when fitted in accordance with ICP2:2002 and BS5534:2003.
